

The background image shows a low-angle view of a classical building facade. In the foreground, a large stone archway is visible. Above it, a balcony with a metal railing runs across the frame. Several flags are flying from poles: the Spanish national flag, the flag of the autonomous community of Castile and León, and the European Union flag. The building's facade features a central window with a decorative pediment and a coat of arms. The sky is clear and blue.
